As we approach the close of another school year we face many milestones indicating the beginning or the ending of another period in our lives. The graduates are entering an entirely new phase of life which will be a challenge to their capabilities, training and character. The other students have progressed another step up the academic ladder to their ultimate goal of graduation. The teaching staff looks forward to a restful summer to prepare them to take on the guidance and responsibilities of their classes in the fall.

To one member of our school family, however, this school closing marks the termination of a lifetime of devotion and love to hundreds of children. No one who has not spent years working with and teaching children can understand how important the milestone of retirement is, and what a void it will leave in the daily life of the individual. Teaching is a labor of love, and only those who love children could possibly spend an entire lifetime in such a career.

Miss Susie E. Rarick, our primary teacher for the past thirty two years completes her teaching service at the end of the school term in accordance with our State Teachers Retirement Law. Miss Rarick thus completes many years of being with little folks, for she came to us from the North Carolina School for the Blind. This should be the ultimate of satisfaction for a job well done and a lifetime spent in service to others. The reflections and memories Miss Rarick will be able to enjoy during her years of restful retirement should be a source of great personal satisfaction. Her students likewise, will long remember their early training and school days and look back to her with many fond memories.

So, Commencement means much to us this year for it really is the commencement of years of happy pleasant retirement for you - Miss Rarick, our noble, fine and good teacher.

A REVIEW OF "DEAR RUTH"

On Friday evening, May 21 the K.S.B. Dramatic Club presented the play entitled "Dear Ruth". Nervously awaiting their curtain call, they received last-minute instructions from the director and coach, Miss M. Blye Allan. At a few minutes past eight their suspense was terminated by Dora, the Wilkins' colored maid, who entered to deliver her opening speech.

As a whole, the play was quite good. Of course, there were times when those of us who had heard the play before literally cringed in our seats for the participants. In my opinion, it was one of the best plays ever given here. Not only was it modern, but also the actors were entirely unrestrained.

At seven-thirty the auditorium had begun to fill up with eager spectators. By eight o'clock it was almost impossible to find a seat anywhere. Practically all the room which was not crowded with chairs was occupied by those who had no choice but to stand. They were still arriving when the curtain ascended.

As always, in a big event like this, we are all anxious to see who will win the annual prize for the best acting. Everyone whom I have talked with, thinks Anna Sue Cochran, who played Miriam, was the most outstanding. The next in line to receive honors is Edison Wommack who portrayed her father. It would be sheer injustice not to mention Joanna Pennington who was heard as Martha Seawright. Anyone who has ever heard the play knows it would be a difficult part in which to receive recognition. However, Joanna threw herself into the role so well that Martha seemed very real to all of us. Bobby Johnson, who was Sergeant Chuck Vincent, was especially good in the scene where he married Martha. Everyone said it looked so real that you would almost have thought he was the proud bridegroom he was portraying. Billy Wood was quite handsome in the uniform of Lieutenant Seawright. When he was talking with the judge about his recent sojourn in Italy, it made all of us sympathize with him very deeply. He won our hearts immediately by his deep devotion to Ruth. I could not leave this article without mentioning Carole Ashcraft, the colored maid, and James Clifford, who was Albert Kummer. The manner which seems to be so natural with him inspired the audience to great heights of merriment. We could not have had a better sound-effects man than Oral Miller. He was right on time with the ringing of doorbells, telephones, and the other necessary sounds.

During the intermission Rufena Randles, accompanied by Mr. William Mootz, sang three songs -- "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes", "Can't Help Lovin' That Man of Mine", and "Falling in Love with Love".

After the play was over, and they had been congratulated by their many hosts of friends, the cast sighed happily, knowing that it was a job well done.

Though it will be another year before the Dramatic Club again display their talent, we are looking forward to a performance just as creditable as this one, if not better.

K is for Kentucky, the state of my birth.
E is for Education, the best gift on earth.
N is for Nature, found in all its splendor.
T is for Treasures; these gifts we render.

U is for Unity -- "United We Stand."
C is for Children, the best in the land.
K is for Kinstfolk, both young and old.
Y is for Yellow, our state flower's gold.

Patter, patter, comes the rain
That brings the flowers back again.
The rain will stop when the sun appears,
And the robin and the bluebird will sing their cheers.

* We had a test in class today --
*     It wasn't very hard,
* But everyone had a terrible time
*     'Cause it was slick as lard.
* But after it was over,
*     Everyone was glad;
* And then the class went on from there,
*     And then no one was sad.
* So if you ever have a test,
*     Here's advice from me:
* Take it easy and don't get mad,
*     For it don't pay, you see.
* I'm sure that our teacher
*     Is just as glad as we
* That this test is over.
*     I would be, if it were me!

Editor's Note -- This poem was written on the "spur of the moment" when the student was given permission to practice anything she wished after finishing part of a typing test. The day before, the class had learned how to make borders, and that was the beginning of the practice work. It ended with the poem!

As the old saying goes, "All good things must come to an end" -- and so our four-day Easter vacation did when we returned to school on March 30.

Perhaps the April showers drowned the blooming activities of spring in its early stages; or, perhaps it was just spring fever that got us down. At any rate, April slipped by without very much interest or excitement.

May, however, brought a very unusual and exciting event to the campus of the K.S.B. The twenty-sixth was declared a "Field Day". Classes were dismissed at noon, and after lunch the student body, divided into two teams, assembled at the track where everyone participated in numerous sports. Although our boys' wrestling and track teams have competed with many other schools, this was the first time that any real competition was held among our own students.

To accommodate the girls graduating from the Louisville Girls' High School, our commencement date has been set back a day. It will be on the evening of June 9. We extend our most sincere congratulations and best wishes to the graduates, Margaret Moore, Lytha Ann Simpson, and James Clifford. From all indications Margaret and James prefer to take a temporary position for the summer, and give more thought to their final decision; while Lytha Ann, after a restful vacation, plans to go to work for her father, owner and editor of the "Wayne County Outlook" in Monticello, Kentucky.

WE WILL CLUB During the past few weeks, the We Wills have been buzzing. About what? Why, the spring program, which will be after chapel on May 31. The program will open with a very special arrangement of "Oh! What a Beautiful Morning", followed by a demonstration of four types of music -- classical, semiclassical, popular, and hillbilly. Then comes an original dialect play by Carole Ashcraft, Margaret Moore, and Naomi Overby. Next comes a story in which the conversation is done in song. Last of all is a catchy little ditty which we use as our club song. We wish to thank Imogene Cheesman, our musical director; Louis Knipp, who, though not a member of our club, worked patiently and faithfully with her on the music; and Mr. William H. Mootz, who accompanied Rufena Randles in our demonstration of semi-classical music.

To accomplish the usual "calm before the storm", we will have supper at the grill on May 29 to get a little relaxation after weeks of hard practicing before the actual performance on the following Monday.

The report from the Chinese school for blind girls, with which we have been in contact, was that an English Bible is wanted more than anything else. Before school closes we hope to have all twenty volumes of the Bible on the way to China.

CHORUS CLUB Perhaps you would have been alarmed had you been here on April 24 and had seen the high school girls rushing like mad up and down stairs and in and out the domestic science room preparing for our Chorus Club picnic on the following afternoon. The program committee declared that it just couldn't rain, but about noon on Sunday, the big day, their hopes were dampened by dark rain clouds hiding the sun. In spite of the clouds, however, at 4:00 P.M. we piled into the school bus and drove to Iroquois Park. Whether the members of the program committee had special contact with the weatherman, or whether it was merely intuition, we don't know. At any rate, it didn't rain, and the picnic was a great success.

The Vallandingham boat party last June seems to have started something. It is unanimously agreed upon by the members of the Chorus Club that nothing except another boat party will do for our last get-together this year. Although the boat which we want to rent is undergoing minor repairs at the present, the program committee reports that the owner expects to have it ready by June 8.

DRAMATIC CLUB At 10:15 P.M. May 21, every member of the Dramatic Club who was in our school play, "Dear Ruth", breathed a deep sigh of relief when the last curtain fell. The students in this sighing but happy cast were: Carole Ashcraft, James Clifford, Anna Sue Cochran, Robert M. Johnson, Oral Miller, Margaret Moore, Joanna Pennington, Lytha Ann Simpson, Edison Wommack, and Billy Wood. In the midst of this group was a happy, and probably very tired, lady who had worked long and patiently with the cast during weeks of rehearsal. When Miss M. Elye Allan is listed as director of a play, one naturally expects it to be good. Without her frequent encouragement and careful supervision in "Dear Ruth" we could never have put it over as successfully. Others to whom we are very grateful are: Mr. Alex Dunton, who was in charge of the stage setting; Rufena Randles, who sang during the intermission, and Mr. William Mootz, her accompanist; Miss Louise Larkin, copy holder; Mittie Mae Hack, in charge of stage properties; Jack Perry curtains; and Herman Davis, Bert Ellis, Jerry Cameron, Dan Abbott, Richard McDowell, ushers.

As usual we hope to have a Dramatic Club picnic at one of the nearby parks sometime before the end of school.

MALE HIGH CLUB During the last half of this school year Leland Lutes left the K.S.B. in order to have an operation. He was unable to return to finish this year's work. We sincerely hope that you will be back with us next year, Leland. We are all looking forward to the Club's reunion next fall.

When the graduation exercises are over at the K.S.B. this year, the Male High Club will have lost one of its charter and well-liked members. James Clifford was one of the original eight boys who made up the first K.S.B. Male High Club. James has always taken an active part in the club work, and will be greatly missed in the coming years. We wish you the best of luck, James, and hope that your future will be very successful and that you will never forget the old gang. We will never forget you.

When we say there's music in the air, we mean just that. The end of school is close, and the next few weeks will be filled with events, including the spring recital, the "We Will" program, and the commencement exercises. Perhaps you would like to know something about each.

The first in this series of events is to take place on May 31st in assembly. This will be the program presented by the members of the We Will Club. The program will open with the singing of "Oh! What a Beautiful Morning", followed by a demonstration of the four types of music -- classical, semi-classical, popular, and folk music. This will precede a short skit which finally leads into the telling of an original story in song, with short narratives between each song to connect the thoughts. The program will conclude with the singing of the We Will Club song.

The spring recital will be given on June 6 in the school auditorium. The advanced students will play piano solos, and the school chorus will be heard in the first, seventh and eighth of the second set of Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms. The chorus will also sing "When Love Is Kind", "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?" and a very attractive arrangement of the familiar "Billy Boy".

As part of the commencement program the chorus will sing two numbers. These will be "God of Our Fathers", and a repeat performance of "When Love Is Kind".

We are once more being entertained by students from the University of Louisville School of Music. On Sunday, May 23, Mr. Richard Spalding will appear in a piano recital in the auditorium here at school. The following Tuesday Mr. Elvin Campbell, a voice student at the School of Music, will present the second of these programs here at school. Both of these young men were here last year, and they gave such excellent performances that we are looking forward very much to their coming.

In spite of the preparations being made for the various musicals, we have still found time to go to concerts. Since the last issue of the "Colonel" went to press, we have had the privilege of attending the last three seasonal concerts given by the Louisville Philharmonic Symphony. On March 2nd Mr. Robert McDowell, pianist, appeared with the orchestra. Miss Helen Traubel appeared as guest soloist on March 23rd. The season came to an end with a combined performance of the Louisville Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and Chorus

On April 10, at the Louisville Women's Club, we attended a concert given by the Albeneri Trio. The artists were Alexander Schneider, violinist, Benar Heifetz, cellist, and Eric Itor Cahn, pianist.

On March 18 we attended a recital given by Miss Helen Kwalwasser at the School of Music. Her performance was excellent. Her piano accompanist was Miss Ida Bonato.

We attended other concerts, including one given by the Louisville Male High School band and chorus, and another by the Louisville Choral Club.

This concludes the news from the music department for the year. It is time now to close the lid on our music box and put it away for the summer, but next year we shall wind it up again and start it playing again for another nine months.

There hadn't been too many happenings in scouting during the last three months until just recently.

To start the ball rolling, two boys passed their tests for second-class scouts, and six more are almost first-class scouts.

Another event in which our scouts participated was a city-wide merit badge show at the Jefferson County Armory. The boys won one of the highest awards given, a blue ribbon, by singing several quartet numbers. We also wanted to demonstrate the athletic merit badge, but due to lack of space this feature was omitted.

On May 22 about twenty-five of our scouts made their annual visit to Covered Bridge Reservation, a scout camp just out of town. The stay at the camp was begun by a group hike over the grounds of the reservation. After roaming all day, the boys ended their stay with a "camp-fire" ceremony. They returned to school the night of the day of their departure.

Our troop is sending a patrol of six boys to a scout jamboree in Philadelphia around the last of May. They are going to camp in one of Philadelphia's camps over the last week-end of May and return to school the beginning of the next week. We hope that this jamboree will become a "must" on our schedule from now on.

One hot sunny day, I decided to go down to the beach. As I was playing in the sand I grew very tired, so I went to rest under a big palm tree. First thing I knew I was drifting slowly away to dream-land.

I was very excited when I found myself in a Bathysphere, going downward into the depths of the sea. I looked through my glasses, so I could see far through the water.

Suddenly I saw the largest fish that I had ever seen. It was coming toward my Bathysphere. Its teeth looked like they could tear both the Bathysphere and me to pieces. This fish was nearly four times as large as a regular fishing boat.

This horrible monster was coming nearer when I saw a great mass of black smoke coming through the water. Then I heard an explosion. It seemed like it was shaking me like an earthquake. Then I heard a terrible cry from the enormous creature. This fish was so amazing that it could talk. I told the monster that he had better take me back to shore or I would keep the water as hot as I could get it. You see, I had touched a switch which caused the terrible heat and made the water boil until it made it shake. The huge creature seemed to melt and fade into the distance as I looked at him. Then I drifted upward again. It was only a dream; I was still lying under the palm tree. I got up and went home again, very glad that it was only a dream.

One day, as our English class had finished all of our work, we went visiting. We went to see Mrs. Queenie White and Mrs. Katie Gray. Mrs. White has three little babies and Mrs. Gray has four.

The two families live down behind the boiler room. They are very happy families. The two mothers are so afraid that something will happen to their babies, they do not like for anyone to bother them.

Mrs. Gray and Mrs. White have many visitors, but they don't mind as long as you don't bother their sweet-looking little babies. The little children from the first and second grades like to visit the new-comers. They love to rub the babies' soft fur coats -- because, you see, Mrs. Katie Gray and her family are cats, and Mrs. Queenie White and her family are dogs.

Their babies are the cutest little things you have ever seen, and both mothers are so proud of their new-born babies.

We are very glad to have Mrs. White's and Mrs. Gray's families here at the K.S.B.

One hot day in a wooded section of the country, a group of travelers were camping for the night. They lay on the ground rolled up in their blankets, and after talking a while everyone dropped off to sleep.

Close to dawn they awoke and found a roaring fire burning all around them. They knew what that meant. It meant a forest fire and they were in danger.

In a short time they got into their truck and were racing against time to get away from the fire that was burning like a furnace. The driver soon brought the car to a quick stop in front of a store, and warned the merchant and his customers that a forest fire was coming that way.

Soon the whole town had gone into the forest to fight the fire. Many hours passed before it was under control and almost all of the forest had been destroyed.

Don't be like these travelers. When you are camping be careful. Make sure your fire is out or have some one to watch it, so that the sparks from it won't destroy animals and trees and even your own life. Be careful!

One Sunday I was aroused out of a deep slumber by the rising bell. Somehow I did not mind the bell as much as usual. Then suddenly I broke into song, I didn't know why; it was just that this particular day made me feel like singing.

Then I realized why I was so happy and I said to myself, "This is spring." Everything proved it. A small ray of sunlight was coming through the window, cheering the whole dormitory. A bird was singing outside, and a gentle breeze brought the fragrance of growing things into the room.

Days like this make one thankful just to be living. Yes, it was spring. There was no mistaking. It is wonderful to think there will be no more cold, dark days. Now we can say, "Goodbye, bad weather, and welcome fair spring time."

Dear Sir:

I hope you will excuse me if you find that this letter is not business like. Even though I do not know you, for a long time now I have been trying to get in contact with a totally blind American girl or boy. I am eager to learn something of the way blind people live in the States, what their opinions are about bearing blindness, their attitudes towards the English. If you have any braille books on the subject, and if you would send me the prices, I would be sincerely thankful. I would prefer a correspondent who would write to me in braille, about my age. I was sixteen in November. I should also like a correspondent from South America and Canada. You Americans have a world-wide reputation for your kindhearted ways and your generosity, and the few Americans I have met have never let this reputation down. I know you must be busy, but I plead with you to think twice before you throw this letter away.

Yours truly,

Dear Peter,

We received your letter about three weeks ago, and I was very glad to hear from you. Your letter was very interesting.

I am seventeen years old, and am in the first year of high school. My four literary subjects are algebra, science, English, and French. I have many other side-line subjects, such as choir, athletics, a study of radio, piano lessons, piano tuning, typewriting, and manual training. I am also in two school quartets. Each of these studies requires a forty-five-minute period each day with the exception of choir, which we have for an hour three times a week, and radio, which we have for two hours twice a week.

We have a scout troop which meets once a week. Every spring we go to the scout camp and camp out all night. As one of the first class requirements is to hike for fourteen miles, some of us usually walk back. This is quite an experience, and it takes your mind off school and lessons for a while. I think that this helps in one's schooling. Our scout troop has about forty members. It is one of the oldest blind troops in America.

I am sending you a copy of our school paper which tells, better than I can, some more of our school activities. The paper is called "The Kentucky Colonel".

Miss Joanna Pennington, a student of our school and a member of the school paper staff, wrote an article on page fifteen of "The Colonel", "Compare Yourself with the Chinese Blind". I think that you will be interested in this article. I will write more on that subject later.

Please write and tell me something about you and your school life.

Your new friend,

Robert M. Johnson.

Track season was greeted somewhat like wrestling season by about twenty boys. Most were newcomers, although four of last year's veterans came out. The veterans were James Scoggins, Herman Davis, Edison Wommack, and Bert Ellis.

We had a light schedule this year having only one meet. Our team of six traveled to Staunton, Virginia, for a triangular track meet with the Virginia school and the North Carolina school. Virginia won the meet, North Carolina came in second, and we came in last. The members of our team included three veterans from last year. The team would have been larger if the mumps hadn't put some of our track men "under the weather".

Another sport (besides wrestling and track) was inaugurated recently. This new and rather strange sport for a school for the blind is horse-shoe pitching. At the rate the boys are pitching the shoes now, they will be good some day.

Coach Sutton announced a field day on May 26. The school was divided into two teams, the Reds and the Whites. These colors are our school colors. The captain of the Red Team is James Lane, one of the members of our regular track team. The captain of the White Team is Edison Wormack, also a member of the track team. Each team has a girl captain, too. Lytha Ann Simpson is helping to pilot the Red Team to victory, while Margaret Moore is working with the White Team. Both girls are members of the senior class.

The events went off in fine style. Both teams were in highest spirits on the afternoon of the meet. As the two teams came on the field, one could tell that a hot battle was going to come off. The meet was begun by the little boys, Class C. At the end of the action between these little fellows, the Reds had gotten an early lead. Then came Class B, the girls. When they finished the Red lead had increased slightly. The last, and what everyone thought would be the deciding part of the meet, then came off -- Class A. When the whole meet was over, the Red team had managed to hold on to its early lead. The high-point man of the whole meet was Bert Ellis, one of the members of the regular track team; and for the girls Betty Jean Green placed first in all her events. A Field Day will probably become an annual affair because everyone liked the first one so much.

The State Office of Vocational Rehabilitation has announced that it will sponsor another orientation and training course this summer for newly blinded young adults. This will make the third such course offered by the School and sponsored by the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation. Persons interested in this type of training should write to Mr. John S. Reed, Supervisor of Services for the Blind, Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, Frankfort, Kentucky.

One of the finest gifts ever received by the school was the complete furnishings and equipment for a student recreation room and lounge by the Louisville Lions Club. Though all the furniture had not been delivered, the room was opened to the students on Friday evening, May 28, for the first time. Two large over-stuffed leather divans and two matching chairs form the foundation of the furniture, supplemented by a huge 12' x 22' rug, a new Magnavox radio-victrola combination, a new Story and Clark spinet piano, a dinette set of four chairs, table and buffet, five game tables and twenty matching steel chairs, silver and china for thirty-six and the five big windows draped with seventy yards of beautiful flowered draperies. The students were surprised when they visited the room and will suitably thank the Louisville Lions Club later by inviting them to a reception when the room is completed and opened formally.

The trip to Philadelphia by a patrol of six of our Scouts was made possible by Mr. Charles W. Allen, who has long been interested in local scouting and more particularly in our Troop. Mr. Allen completely outfitted the boys making the trip with new uniforms, and they really made a smart looking group as they headed East for the Jamboree to represent our school.

We also want to acknowledge again here the donation of small table model radios for the student dormitories by Mrs. Howard Herman, Mr. and Mrs. Dann C. Byck and Mrs. Virginia Archer's Sunday School Class, St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. These gifts provide many hours of entertainment for the children after school and on weekends, and are worthwhile additions to our recreational facilities.

A party of nine members of our school family will travel to Texas later in June after the close of school to attend the biennial meeting of The American Association of Instructors of the Blind. Those making the trip are: Miss M. Blye Allan, Mrs. Hazel Judd, Miss Louise Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Langan, Mr. Samuel Richie, Miss Edith Ries, Miss Martha Schneider, and Mrs. Margaret Traub. The group will visit the Arkansas, the Oklahoma and the Missouri Schools enroute and will spend four days at the Texas School, host for the Convention this year. Mr. Langan, who has been Chairman for the A.A.I.B. Braille Committee for the past ten years, will present a paper at the Convention.

During the past year three very important construction jobs have been completed on the school plant which brings our century old main building up to modern safety standards. A new modern boiler house has been added to the old boiler room-laundry building, which will remedy the constant repair and expense of keeping up our old twenty-six year boilers. New boilers have been installed increasing our heating capacity by more than one hundred percent which will provide for future buildings planned.

A sprinkler system has been installed in the main building from the cellar to the attic dome which makes our building practically fireproof. This installation, together with the complete rewiring of our electrical facilities adds a safety factor which has been a concern to the administration for many years. The old wooden molding encasing inadequate wiring and the over-loaded fuse and switch boxes have all been replaced with modern circuit breakers, larger wire and metal conduit to insure proper carrying load. Our building was wired more than thirty years ago and with the electrical facilities that have been added since that time, our whole plant was a serious fire hazard in itself. These two jobs covering all five floors containing more than one hundred rooms in our beautiful old main building were tremendous projects for the contractors and expensive installation items, but we feel that the protection to the lives of our students this type of equipment offers cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

We hope that now these physical improvements are out of the way that we will be able to begin on our building program to improve the educational and recreational facilities of our school. One of the buildings included in this program is a new, modern gymnasium with a swimming pool which will enable us to offer an adequate program of physical education to our students and provide them with suitable recreational equipment and facilities.

School will open in the fall with regular classes starting on Tuesday, September 14. Monday, September 13, will be the returning day for all students.
